See the light, save your hair.

If you are one of the 30 million American women dealing with thinning hair or hair loss, a new light procedure may be for you.

LED, (light-emitting-diode) treatments are using a light energy to stimulate hair growth and slow hair loss. David H. McDaniel, MD, assistant professor of clinical dermatology and plastic surgery at Eastern Virginia Medical School conducted a study of 20 patients using Gentlewaves LED Photomodulation. Some patients had less hair loss while others experienced new hair growth. Researchers believe the light alters hair genes (which is also how products with topical medicine minoxidil are thought to work). Dr. McDaniels patients needed anywhere from 8 to 36 treatments to see results. Larger clinical trials are under way across the country. Ask us about LED for your thinning hair.
